

Two Papers Read Before Historical Society Session

"Life of Young in Colonial Ulster" and "Kingston Academy" Are Subjects Presented

Annual Meeting

Judge Hasbrouck Welcomes Ulster County Historical Society Members at Session

Interesting and valuable papers by two of the society's most gifted and painstaking writers featured at the literary session of the spring meeting of the Ulster County Historical Society, held at the Governor Clinton Hotel today.

Subjects covered were "The Life of the Young in Colonial Ulster," presented by Miss Mary Jansen DuBois and "Kingston Academy," by Edward L. Merritt, who for several years served the society as its secretary.

The literary session was called to order shortly after 11 o'clock by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, president of the society. Judge Hasbrouck, after expressing his pleasure at being able to welcome so many members at the meeting, referred briefly to the fact that the present society is the successor to the Ulster Society founded in 1859. The original society progressed until the death of its leading member, Col. George W. Pratt, who was wounded at the Second Battle of Bull Run and died later in Albany. However, Judge Hasbrouck noted, the former society's membership was limited to upwards of 40 at the best, while the present organization has an enrollment of between 225 and 250. The judge announced that the treasurer, Miss Elsie V. N. Gill, was unable to be present because of illness, but assured the members that the society's finances were in good order. He then presented Miss DuBois, whose charmingly written paper on the young people of Ulster in Colonial days was listened to with intense interest. Miss DuBois, who at a former meeting of the society told something of the life of the women of early Ulster country days, had a subject with which she is thoroughly familiar and gave much interesting and enlightening detail of family life and living conditions in Colonial days, interspersed with a bit of philosophical comparison with the present era of paternalistic government. Particularly pleasing were her references to some love-letters written back in the latter part of 1700, with their heart-felt expressions, interwoven with much that was very practical. The letters were written to Miss Jane DuBois, of New Paltz, who was a daughter of Cornelius DuBois, the latter the great-grandfather of Miss Mary Jansen DuBois. The Jane DuBois of long ago finally gave her heart to one Jacob Hardenburgh, who signed himself her "ever lover." And although he lived but a few years after their marriage, she remained true to his memory and despite the pleas of numerous widowers never remarried.

Comprehensive Study

Mr. Merritt's paper on Kingston Academy was a comprehensive and carefully prepared account of that old institution and its successor. He began his story with the efforts made in 1769 to establish an academy in Kingston and showed that although that attempt was not immediately successful, its outgrowth was the erection of the old Kingston Academy at the corner of John and Crown streets, which started in 1774. The original building was burned by the British in 1777, but was rebuilt and in a little more than a year was once more functioning as an institution of learning. This building, standing today, has for some years past been occupied by the Leader Co.

Following the reading of Mr. Merritt's paper, members of the society and guests adjourned to the crystal dining room, where the annual luncheon was served.

Senate Votes 6 to 1 For Three Billion Spending Program

Opponents of Spending-Lending Measure Completely Routed and Lose Restrictive Attempts

Washington, June 4 (AP)—The Senate voted six to one for a $3,723,000,000 spending-lending program last midnight—and handed the Roosevelt administration the pursestrings.

The 70 senators who remained for the finish of the two-weeks' battle over the bill divided 60 to 10 for the measure. Seven Republicans and three Democrats lined up against it.

Before the final vote, opponents of the program were completely routed. They lost every attempt to write restrictions into the bill. As passed, it would give President Roosevelt an entirely free hand in the disposition of the huge appropriation.

Twice the Senate turned down proposals to forbid political activities by employees in emergency agencies. Opponents of the amendments contended this would deny such employees freedom of speech and opinion.

These amendments brought the closest contest. One was rejected by one vote and the other by two.

Proposals Defeated

By substantial margins, administration leaders defeated proposals to earmark more than $500,000,000 of PWA funds for specific purposes.

President Roosevelt, asking "flexibility" in the relief program, had indicated opposition to earmarking.

The chamber also turned a cold shoulder to a Republican proposal to hand over relief administration to the states and an effort by Senator Byrd (Va.) to wipe out the $965,000,000 appropriation for the PWA.

Tired at the end of three night sessions, the senators acted on a score of amendments last night. Long speeches were few and far between, and when one did come the speaker's argument was interrupted by loud cries of "vote."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, stepped from one desk to another during the last hours of debate, holding whispered conferences and presumably urging senators to hold their tongues and let the bill come to a vote.

Congress Would Adjourn

Upon passage of the bill, Barkley told his weary listeners that Congress probably would adjourn next week-end after sending the relief measure and a pending wage-hour bill to the White House.

The spending-lending program now goes to a joint Senate-House conference committee to adjust differences between measures passed by the two chambers.

The Senate bill totaled almost $600,000,000 more than the House measure. The Senate increased by $175,000,000 the House allotment for the PWA, but provided that the sum should run the agency until next March 1. The House had voted $1,250,000 for work-relief to last until February 1.

Mexican Problem More Complicated For Pres. Cardenas

Mexico City, June 4 (AP)—The dynamiting of a freight train in San Luis Potosi state and frost complications of the religious issue in Tabasco state confronted the government today.

A message to President Lazaro Cardenas signed by a "committee of Tabascans" charged authorities of that state had arrested and "expelled by plane" a Catholic priest, Father Hidalgo de Villa Hermosa.

It was at Villa Hermosa where six persons were killed Monday in a clash with state authorities when Catholics gathered to restore a church building destroyed during the regime of Tomas Carrillo Canabal.

The message charged the reported explosion was in defiance of statements from the President and the interior department assuring there would be no persecution of Catholics.

The department's statement published yesterday, and regarded as a rebuke to Governor Manuel Fernandez Manera of Tabasco, said pointedly:

"All authorities have express

Condemn Civilian Bombing

Washington, June 4 (AP)—The United States, condemning bombing of civilians, offered cooperation with other nations to-day in "humanizing" the rules of warfare.

The willingness and desire of this country to join in such an effort was expressed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull in a significant address on foreign affairs in Nashville, Tenn., last night. He also announced the readiness of the United States, just beginning a huge naval expansion program, to reduce and limit armaments instead if other nations will do the same.

A few hours before Hull's address, Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, had denounced in a statement here the bombings in Spain and China which have killed thousands of women and children. Welles called such warfare "barbarous" and added:

"Any general bombing of an extensive area wherein there reside a large population is engaged in peaceful pursuits is contrary to every principle of law and humanity."

The state department said Hull's address had been dispatched to world capitals and would be available if foreign offices wanted it. However, American embassies and legations were not given instructions, they said, to pass it on to foreign governments.

In addition to asserting this country's willingness to limit arms and agree to a humane code of war practices, the secretary of state said the United States was prepared to join other nations:

"In directing every effort toward the restoration and strengthening of sound and constructive international economic relationships."

"In exploring all other methods of revitalizing the spirit of international cooperation."

Officials said Hull had no immediate intention of calling an international conference on any of these points, although this was not excluded for some future date.

Officials awaited with keen interest the reaction not only from abroad but also from the United States to Hull's fervent plea for United public support of such an international program.

The secretary of state said:

"There is desperate need in our country, and in every country, of a strong and united public opinion in support of such a renewal and demonstration of faith in the possibility of a world order based on law and international cooperation."

LAZIEST ON EARTH THRIVING IN MAINE

Logging Camp Keepers Begin Summer Exile.

Bangor, Maine.—As the last of the logs swirl down the swollen streams of Maine, the laziest and the loneliest men in the world will start six months of forest exile as keepers of logging camps deserted by their crews until the leaves turn in the fall.

Few men, only those who are natural hermits, want this job of doing nothing for fair pay and a good living. Sometimes one of the crew is willing to stay behind when the others set out with a whoop for Bangor, but more often the logging operators hire one of the strange sons of the forest, for the most part French Canadians, who were born in the woods and know nothing of towns.

From their boyhood these "Cannucks" have worked occasionally to get money for rifles, ammunition, traps, tobacco and whisky, but they have spent most of their time fishing, hunting, trapping and, most of all, doing nothing in particular. The camp keeper's job provides them with a home, plenty to eat and smoke and, at the end of the off-season, when they need hunting and trapping outfit, a handful of money—not much, but enough.

Ruler of Unenanted Realm.
Throughout his sojourn in the log cabin domain bereft of its lumberjack denizens, the camp keeper is monarch of all he surveys. He has his pick of a variety of provisions left over from the winter stores and dropping a line in a brook will bring him trout for breakfast.

He fails heir to all the lively literature, pipes and other odds and ends left by the departed crew and he has his choice of a hundred bunks for sleeping. But his only chance of seeing another human being is the rare passing of a timber cruiser or a far-wandering fisherman.

While protecting the camp against fire, he must also guard the axes, cants, sleds, harness, blankets, kitchen outfit and provisions, such as pork, flour, molasses, beans and canned goods. He needs his rifle. For nothing edible is safe from the most expert of all burglars, the bear.

The skill of the bear at breaking and entering, larceny and general destruction is amazing.

Mystified by Mathematics.
So, "always mindful of bears, the camp keeper eats, smokes, sleeps and, if he can read, peruses his literary legacy. More than likely he is illiterate and most of his tribe are blissfully ignorant. They are especially untutored in arithmetic, keeping time and accounts by notches on a stick or on the brim of a hat.

The Happa Dog.
The Happa dog is identical in every respect with the Pekinese except that his coat is short and smooth. It is a very old breed, originating like the Peke, in China. The pup is said to be a descendant of the ancient Happa. Dutch sailors are believed to have brought the Happa to Holland and from there they were taken to England. After being crossed with other breeds, the resultant offspring became the pugs, as we now know them.

TOWNSEND PLAN NEWS

The National Drive is still on to double the membership of the thousands of Townsend Clubs throughout the country, at least to add a million new members on next June 24th. The Kingston Club is nearing the goal of doubling its membership. If you would like to see this great movement triumph, call on the secretary or phone and say you wish to join. Some are doing this. Phone call is 356J, Kingston.

An important event occurs next Wednesday evening at Mechanics Hall (14 Henry St.) A Townsend Prize Contest will take place. Four Kingston men and two ladies will compete, giving brief talks on six aspects of the Townsend Recovery Plan, viz., the Government, Business, Labor, The Old People, Youth and the Churches. The general subject of the contest will be, "Why the Townsend Plan is Sure to Win."

Prominent Kingston merchants have contributed attractive prizes for the three best "talks" among the contestants. The audience, by ballot, will decide who shall receive the first, second and third prize in the contest.

Some special musical attractions are also expected in addition to the singing by the audience of the stirring Townsend crusade songs. All persons 18 years of age or over are cordially invited. Admission is free. Come early and get a seat.

One of the cheering omens of the early triumph of the Townsend Movement is that it is enlisting in its ranks people of all political and religious creeds and all social classes and conditions. Protestants and Catholics, saints and skeptics, Jews and Gentiles, the educated and illiterate, the rich and poor, all are united in loyal interest and enthusiasm in the Townsend clubs, representative of the great citizenry of our nation.

New York has been one of the backward states in this Movement. But it is now rapidly catching up with other states in the number of its clubs, membership and victorious enthusiasm. We are happy to announce that the Rhinecliff Club organized by the Kingston Club several months ago, has nearly 100 members now enrolled and is actively going forward to greater success.

Kingston Club is planning many events of special local interest for the summer. Every member added to our rolls will help in the accomplishment of greater things.

If you are not yet reading the Townsend National Weekly, get a copy at O'Reilly's, Epstein's, Schatzel's or Otto's, or telephone 356J. It is full of stirring news that can be gotten nowhere else.

FREEDOM BEGINS AT HOME

The present depression is to last for "at least ten years, or until permanent economic reform is effected," declared Jay Franklin, news columnist, in a public address. The statement threw a shock into his audience. Listeners seemed too stunned to question it.

That is one extreme view. The opposite extreme is far more familiar. Business men generally insist that the depression cannot end, and business go ahead again, until the reforms stop. So there's a deadlock, in which we don't even mark time. We slide back and keep on going down hill.

A woman protests that "darling" is used too much nowadays, and another woman says that's O.K. because "it's such a darling of a word."

The general belief that business will improve next fall might make it improve this summer.

The beliefs held most passionately are those that ain't so.

START INJECTIONS FOR HAY FEVER NOW

Although hay fever symptoms—sneezing, running nose, itchy eyes, sometimes obstructed nose—may occur at any time in the year, with trees in the Spring, grasses in the Summer, and weeds in the Autumn, what is commonly called hay fever is the Autumn type, caused in most cases by pollen from ragweed. It is estimated that almost 2 per cent—one in every fifty persons—is subject to hay fever to some degree.

The Fall weed hay fever season begins toward the end of July in southern districts and from the middle to the end of August in the northern, and ends with the first frost.

In addition to the above mentioned symptoms, there may be headaches, weakness and tiredness, and slight asthmatic symptoms.

To detect the particular pollen causing the hay fever, skin tests and also tests by eating suspected foods or inhaling (breathing in) other substances, are used. This, in most cases, locates the pollen or other substance to which the individual is sensitive or allergic.

What about treatment?

The treatment now generally used is to try to make the patient less sensitive or allergic to the substance—ragweed pollen in most cases—to which he is sensitive. This is done by injecting small quantities of pollen extract under the skin once or twice a week for six to eight weeks before the hay fever symptoms usually appear. Most physicians prefer to start the injections not less than three to four months before the hay fever season as it allows much more pollen extract to be given and thus a better chance to get the system desensitized to the ragweed pollen.

With the arrival of the hay fever season, the injections are continued but the dose is reduced to one-half.

In treating the hay fever symptoms as they arise, Dr. C. R. K. Johnston, in the Cleveland number of the Medical Clinics of North America, states, "To relieve eye symptoms, eye washes of boracic acid or salt—a quarter teaspoonful to a cup of water—give considerable relief. The nose symptoms may be helped by the use of ephedrine sulfate."

If you are subject to hay fever you should consult your physician at once about the use of the pollen extract. Most family physicians now give these injections regularly.

ALLERGY

Some individuals are oversensitive to certain foods or other substances and will have colds in their heads, stuffy noses, hay fever symptoms, asthmatic attacks, migraine, pains in the abdomen or other symptoms when they eat or inhale these substances. In the booklet entitled "Allergy," (No. 106), Dr. Barton tells how to discover the offending substances and what to do about them. To obtain this booklet send ten cents for each copy desired to the Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the name of this newspaper.

THE QUINTS GO HOME

The famous family at Callander, Ont., at last are going to be all under one roof, just as Pera and Mere Dionne have insisted all along. Just one great, big, happy family—perhaps! The world will hold its breath and hope for the best, as the grand new house is built and the parents and quintuplets and elder and younger brothers and sisters all move in. Possibly the quints can stand it now. But it will be a struggle, with Papa and Mema picking the nurses and teachers. And good old Dr. Dafoe will pay a high price for family unity.

Thanks to the doctor, aided by a paternal government, those five little girls have earned their own living, paid for their luxurious mode of life and accumulated a fortune, and are taking good care of their parents. They still deserve a reasonable amount of letting alone. It is natural that the simple-minded, uncultured parents should be jealous. They cannot understand such things as hygiene, guardianship, trust funds for their children and state responsibility for their upbringing. It is necessary to compromise.

In a way, the Dionne parents will still be fighting a losing battle, and not alone. Society everywhere in civilized lands exerts more and more jurisdiction over the rearing of children, whether multiple or single. And it must be so, for the good of all.

REFORM AND/OR RECOVERY

The present depression is to last for "at least ten years, or until permanent economic reform is effected," declared Jay Franklin, news columnist, in a public address. The statement threw a shock into his audience. Listeners seemed too stunned to question it.

That is one extreme view. The opposite extreme is far more familiar. Business men generally insist that the depression cannot end, and business go ahead again, until the reforms stop. So there's a deadlock, in which we don't even mark time. We slide back and keep on going down hill.

A woman protests that "darling" is used too much nowadays, and another woman says that's O.K. because "it's such a darling of a word."

The general belief that business will improve next fall might make it improve this summer.

The beliefs held most passionately are those that ain't so.

START INJECTIONS FOR HAY FEVER NOW

Although hay fever symptoms—sneezing, running nose, itchy eyes, sometimes obstructed nose—may occur at any time in the year, with trees in the Spring, grasses in the Summer, and weeds in the Autumn, what is commonly called hay fever is the Autumn type, caused in most cases by pollen from ragweed. It is estimated that almost 2 per cent—one in every fifty persons—is subject to hay fever to some degree.

The Fall weed hay fever season begins toward the end of July in southern districts and from the middle to the end of August in the northern, and ends with the first frost.

In addition to the above mentioned symptoms, there may be headaches, weakness and tiredness, and slight asthmatic symptoms.

To detect the particular pollen causing the hay fever, skin tests and also tests by eating suspected foods or inhaling (breathing in) other substances, are used. This, in most cases, locates the pollen or other substance to which the individual is sensitive or allergic.

What about treatment?

The treatment now generally used is to try to make the patient less sensitive or allergic to the substance—ragweed pollen in most cases—to which he is sensitive. This is done by injecting small quantities of pollen extract under the skin once or twice a week for six to eight weeks before the hay fever symptoms usually appear. Most physicians prefer to start the injections not less than three to four months before the hay fever season as it allows much more pollen extract to be given and thus a better chance to get the system desensitized to the ragweed pollen.

With the arrival of the hay fever season, the injections are continued but the dose is reduced to one-half.

In treating the hay fever symptoms as they arise, Dr. C. R. K. Johnston, in the Cleveland number of the Medical Clinics of North America, states, "To relieve eye symptoms, eye washes of boracic acid or salt—a quarter teaspoonful to a cup of water—give considerable relief. The nose symptoms may be helped by the use of ephedrine sulfate."

If you are subject to hay fever you should consult your physician at once about the use of the pollen extract. Most family physicians now give these injections regularly.

ALLERGY

Some individuals are oversensitive to certain foods or other substances and will have colds in their heads, stuffy noses, hay fever symptoms, asthmatic attacks, migraine, pains in the abdomen or other symptoms when they eat or inhale these substances. In the booklet entitled "Allergy," (No. 106), Dr. Barton tells how to discover the offending substances and what to do about them. To obtain this booklet send ten cents for each copy desired to the Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the name of this newspaper.

OCTAGON HOUSE
BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far: Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, is investigating yesterday's murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office murmur aroused Quonset. She was killed by a left-handed blow from her sister's knife, and Pam Frye is suspected. Pam disappears after hiding $50,000 worth of ambergris. Asey learns that Marina's marriage to Jack Lorne was a fraud because she was already married to Tim Carr, border at the Frye's Octagon House. She also played around with Roddy Strutt, whose plane crashed conveniently the night of the murder. Before the eyes of Asey, Jack, and Peggy Boone, an artist, the barn burns down. Realizing the fire was set by someone who wanted to discover the location of the ambergris, Asey prowls around the woods. He finds Tim knocked out, and then Tim finds Asey knocked out. Pam's father is missing.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS CROW!

"CROW!" called Willy Nilly.

There was no answer.

"Christopher Columbus Crow!"

the little man called again.

Still there was no answer.

Christopher was sitting in his nest so he couldn't be seen, but so he could hear what was going on below, and certainly there would be no chance that Willy Nilly would believe he couldn't be heard.

Willy Nilly was shouting.

Then Christopher noticed that Honey Bear had joined Willy Nilly.

"Were you calling Christopher?"

she growled as she came up to the little man.

"Yes," answered Willy Nilly,

"he said he would help me with the grubs in my garden. He was going to tidy his nest first of all, but he must have had time for that."

"Perhaps," said Honey Bear, "he fell asleep after his work."

"Perhaps," agreed Willy Nilly doubtfully.

"Well," growled Honey Bear.

"I'll help you all I can."

Christopher breathed more easily for a moment. He was grateful to Honey Bear.

But after a while Willy Nilly said:

"I'll give one more call for Christopher," and again there was no answer.

"He should have finished his work—and his nap, if he took one—by now," said Willy Nilly.

"What time is it?" asked Honey Bear.

"Let's go and see," answered Willy Nilly. Poor Christopher shivered.

In a minute Willy Nilly would look for the watch and he wouldn't find it.

Christopher didn't know what to do.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By SUSAN COONS

Broadway: "The Adventures of Robin Hood". A legendary story that is part fact and part fiction colors the Broadway screen in this tale of the famed Robin Hood who hid himself away in Sherwood Forest with a band of loyal followers to harass a weakling king. Robbing the rich to help the poor and enjoying spirited and dangerous adventure at every turn, this film depicts the fight Robin Hood waged for the right and how he conquered injustice and won his Maid Marian at one and the same time. Never was a story better adapted to screen drama and the producers, writers and director have made the most of it. Here is a play that should prove thrilling and enjoyable to everyone with its glamour and excitement and romance. Done entirely in Technicolor and with a cast of a thousand participants, "The Adventures of Robin Hood" is sheer entertainment and well worth the attention of movie audiences everywhere. Heading the cast is Errol Flynn along with Basil Rathbone and Olivia DeHavilland.

Kingston: "Kentucky Moonshine". The first starring vehicle of the lunatic Ritz Brothers is a gusty comedy woven around the efforts of a vaudeville team to break into big time radio. Finding that there is a call for radio hillbillys, the three brothers set up shop in Kentucky to create the proper realism, get mixed up in a feud and have a crazy time of it generally. The show is a thing of incessant movement with the Ritz Brothers leading the pack with their humorous antics. During the festivities they do a parody on Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs and those who found the Ritz Brothers to their liking in lesser roles will enjoy this full hour of their inanities.

Orpheum: "Lady Behave" and "Outlaws of Sonora". Sally Eilers and Neil Hamilton are featured in the first film at the Orpheum in a romantic comedy number while the "Three Mesquites" are starred in the associate number, a fast-paced melodrama of law versus lawlessness in the great southwest.

Tomorrow: Broadway: Same. Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Swing It Professor". Pinky Tomlin, song writer occasionally turned actor, is the star of this musical endeavor that has plenty of the modern musical madness called swing plus the talents of Paula Stone. An added feature is the Wall Disney's Academy Award Revue" plus the last chapter of "Lone Ranger" and the first chapter of the new serial, "Fighting Devil Dogs."

Freshen Summer Rooms With Gayer Lampshades

FOR WARM EVENINGS
These are some of the bright lampshades that are available to make rooms more cheery in summer.

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES.
Prepared by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman.

Probably the easiest way to change the looks of a room for the summer is with new lampshades—gay and amusing. And packing away the old silk ones until next winter is good for them, too.

Is your furniture maple? Instead of the plain parchment shades of winter, try lively all-over printed pleated shades. For a 17th century English kind of room, with rough walls, try coral crush shades with color-fast rope edgings, which repeat the color of the slip-covers.

If you have been captivated by the humor of the Victorian, you will be tickled with a shell-decorated shade to remind you of the shell-covered boxes and doodads on grandmother's parlor table.

Novel are the bamboo-trimmed shades and those made entirely of split bamboo. There are also fabric shades with padded appliques of fruit and flower clusters; shades with beads and shades with feathers.

Particularly appropriate for lamps with crystal bases are shades with bunches of crystal fruit and flower ornaments.

There is popularity ahead for lustre black, dark green or blue shades. These are as attractive as they are distinctive and they give good light. If the lining is white, if no light passes through and if there is an I.E.S. reflector bowl inside. With a white celluloid, nearly all the light will be diffused from it.

In the new lighting, good taste is the same as good health. The old-fashioned "not enough" lighting is not only drab but bad for the eyes.

Make Yourself At Home When You Travel By Rail

By JOAN DURHAM
(AP) Feature Service Writer

If you're taking a reasonably long train journey, you'll come in contact with four people, the train and Pullman conductors, the porter and the dining car waiter.

The train conductor, who takes your ticket, is in charge of the whole train. The Pullman conductor, who checks on your reservations, accompanies the train conductor.

For Your Comfort

In the newer coaches, as well as in Pullman cars, you are served by a porter. He's there to make you comfortable. In coaches he shows you how to adjust the seat for sitting or reclining, provides a pillow (there's usually a quarter charge for overnight use). Ten cents or a quarter is a good tip.

To Pass The Time

The club and observation cars generally are supplied with reading material if time hangs heavy on your hands. While you're waiting for your berth to be made up you can sit in an unoccupied section of the Pullman, in the dressing room or in the club car.

In preparing for bed, if you're in an upper berth you probably will find it more convenient to get undressed in the dressing room at the end of the car, then call the porter. He'll get his ladder and help you up to your berth.

In the Pullman your porter will put your hat in a hat bag when you take it off, he'll set up a table in your section if you want one. He makes up the berths, helps you up a ladder if you have an upper berth, calls you in the morning.

At any time you ask him to and takes your bags to the station platform when you reach your destination. Tip him from a quarter up.

If you don't carry your own lunch, you will want to eat in the dining car at mealtime. If you want just a snack or a drink, go to the buffet car. In the dining car you will be seated by a steward.

The waiter should get a ten or fifteen cent tip for breakfast; twenty cents at luncheon and a quarter at dinner time.

At the end of three weeks her "occupational posture" was gone and her weight was distributed properly, her hair glinted attractively. Mrs. Miller went home equipped with cosmetics and exercise routines to keep up the good work.

Strain the liquid from canned pimientos and save it to moisten stuffing for roasts, fowl or chops.

Spinach is a valuable vegetable, but it does need some additional flavor to make it appeal to all the family. You can make it more palatable by adding a cheese minutes a day and a reconditioning tonic was used on it. Every other day her hair got special treatments. New hair styles were experimented with.

Mrs. Miller had used cosmetics only spasmodically. In New York she was taught to use cleansing cream, skin tonic, night cream, eye cream, two shades of powder, cream rouge, mascara, eyebrow pencil and lip stick.

That vital culinary instrument, the can opener, should have a special hook to hang on. It's used so often that you will save time by not dumping it in the drawer with all your other kitchen gadgets.

Add six whole cloves, one teaspoon of cinnamon and a tablespoonful of lemon juice to two cups of diced pineapple, chill for several hours, then remove the cloves at serving time.

"When sending flowers to friends who have just undergone operations, wait two or three days, for even small amounts of ether in the air ruin flowers, and the patient is usually too sick at the time to enjoy them."

Mrs. Bowers also suggested that ill friends be sometimes sent one or two flowers, such as roses, on different days, instead of one large bouquet. She advised against sending flowers with strong odors, such as lilacs and gardenias.

Imagination and ingenuity can transform ordinary plants, like dandelions, young oak leaves, strawberries, grasses and madrakas, as well as commonly-used flowers, into charming decorations, and make possible frequent changes of flower arrangements.

Pour a bit of ginger ale over fruit cocktails just before serving time.

Saidie Orr Dunbar Sees Women As Social Force

By The AP Feature Service. Portland, Ore.—Saidie Orr Dunbar believes organized womanhood should solve the social problems of the United States. Because she worked to put this belief into practice, Mrs. Dunbar has just been elected president of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

The new head of the world's foremost organization of women is a large woman with soft, brown hair—slightly gray and unbrushed. She has blue eyes and a ready smile. Friends say she has a comforting personality, and that one's first impression on meeting her is that "you could sit down and talk to her anytime."

But 57-year-old Mrs. Dunbar is considerably more than a confidante. Missouri-born, she came to Oregon as a child, was graduated from Portland university, and started her club work in 1903, three years after her marriage. (Her husband died in 1928; they had two children.) Interested primarily in public health, she was chairman for the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs, and in 1916 became executive secretary of the Oregon Tuberculosis association. She held that post until her recent election.

Oregonians say she made the tuberculosis association one of the greatest social organizations in the country. She is known as the "mother of our unorganized social problems."

How To Draw A Crowd As A June Bride

By The AP Feature Service
SO YOU'RE thinking of getting married this June? Lots of people are, but only a few of the weddings will make much of a splash. If you want yours to attract some real attention, you might stage it like this:

ON HORSEBACK
To be yoked, this Virginia couple climbed into saddles. Everybody else was on horseback, too, except the minister. Rose B. Wallace and George M. Van Horn were the principals.

IN A POOL
Some people are very cautious about marriage, but J. F. Gutnick and Katie Wilson of Los Angeles plunged right in with diving helmets on. The minister looks on as they embrace.

IN WHALE'S MOUTH
The whale was on exhibition, and so were Betty Gentry and J. R. Henderson when they thought up this stunt at Long Beach, Calif. This is the wedding rehearsal.

IN A LAKE
This one wasn't so far-fetched, because Merlin Andrews met Elsie Hagner in the water. He saved her from drowning. Everybody wore bathing suits except the minister.

Dip Its Wings

Seattle, June 4 (AP)—The broad wings of the 42-ton Boeing Clipper dipped perilously three times as pilots were unable to turn the huge ship around in a gassy 16 mile wind yesterday. After three unsuccessful attempts to turn the clipper about, a tug towed it back across Seattle Harbor to its anchorage. Each time the big bird tilted, dipping about seven or eight feet of one of the wingtips in the water. Boeing officials explained that in actual service the clipper would carry most of her 4,200 gallons of gasoline in the main tanks in the sea wing, which would give the ship a much lower center of gravity. Yesterday, they said, all the gasoline was carried in the main wings.

hour. Sunday afternoon awards will be made and the camp will disband.

In the drill shed of the armory are several booths housing displays of Scout handicraft. These booths in many instances attracted the attention of the public and many of the exhibits were extremely well done.

One exhibit which added a touch of sadness to the display but showed the seriousness of some of the Scouts was that of Hunter Troop 54. This troop had a display of metal work and wood-work together with a showing of various kinds of knots but the interesting part of the display was a model "in memory of the 19 persons" to whom the exhibit is dedicated. The exhibit showed a model section of rough terrain, covered with snow and partly buried beneath the "snow" were the remains of a battered and twisted aeroplane while overhead was suspended a small craft "observing" the wreck. The model showed the troop's conception of the crash of a large luxury airliner in the Unita Mountains where 19 persons perished. This model was made by Patrol Leader Tommy Cooper and Assistant Patrol Leader Buddy Ferraro.

Among Displays

Among the other displays in the drill shed were:

Troop 16, Wallkill, showing a handiwork of Scouts, a number of types of stone, arrow-heads, bird houses and other out door craft.

Troop 73, of Milton, showed a display of planes, a miniature landing field with hangar and very cleverly designed boats.

Troop 3 showed a number of types of knots and a miniature camp site.

Troop 11, of Kingston, had a display of various kinds of wood and bark of different species and a small model of country showing a stream, covered bridge and surrounding country.

Troop 50, Maplecrest, had a display of knots and a showing of woodwork.

Troop 53, also displayed wood products made by members of the troops and a type of scout grill with two pans "on the fire."

Troop 23 showed a collection of colored pictures of birds and a sample of the work of the boys in a display of types of birds.

Troop 7 showed various wood-working products and in their booth had set up for operation a power jig-saw. Included in the display was a large aeroplane complete in detail, smaller planes and various model ships.

The Elston Sport Shop had a booth in which was displayed various official scout items.

Not His Fault

Los Angeles, June 4 (AP)—"It's not my fault," Willy Fogany told the jury, if he looked at Actress Constance Bennett and painted her as he saw her. "An artist is not a dressmaker," he said. "The creative work of art is not on the same level as a dress which is made to fit a person." Search Continues In Levine Case

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—While a navy diver today searched the floor of Echo Bay for Peter Levine's head which Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire says is most important to establish the manner of death, the doctor reported that poison played no part and that the tissue was too far decomposed to furnish any clue.

George Anderson of the Brooklyn Navy Yard made repeated trips to the bottom in from 25 to 45 feet of water today after an exploratory dive yesterday to get his bearings. He reported the going difficult because of sea kelp and large rocks encrusted with razor-sharp growths and said he had to step slowly to avoid stirring up blinding silt from the floor.

Police thought it an outside chance that Anderson would find Peter's skull, his shoes or the bones of hands and feet which were missing when the torso was washed ashore Sunday night. G-men checked tides and currents to determine if the body could have drifted in after having been cast from one of the small islands in the bay.

Dr. Squire said analysis of Peter's vital organs at Grasslands Hospital proved negative for all the general poisons. The heavy metals, acids, and poisons soluble in alkaline ether and ammonia chloroform were eliminated. The medical examiner was disappointed at the report that microscopic examination of the tissue and skin of the neck was negative because of decomposition. He had hoped a ridge at the back of the neck would prove a clue.

Davimen Out For Revenge on Albany

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock—Kingston Colonials will attempt to get back on the winning end when they face the powerful Albany Black Sox at the Pantomine field. Probable pitchers are Bill Thomas and Lefty Hill.

Once again the Davimen will be out for direct revenge. Last season the Capitol tossers clapped the locals around in three straight games. However, the Colonials are expected to offer better opposition than did the team of '37 as Fred Davi's team is much better balanced, say the experts.

On Thursday the locals had another opportunity to take a winning club into their books but some wild tossing and playing ruined that chance. Joe Brown, the celebrated Big Train, was in good form and deserved a far better break. As it was Joe allowed only seven hits and had a tie game going into the ninth frame.

Since the last meeting of the Davimen, a new lineup has been put on the field and they started in the Giant game on Thursday. In place of Eddie Burgevin on second, Davi had Charlie Bock, who had seven sparkling assists before his miff in the ninth inning. At short Jimmy Turk was supplanted by Charlie Francello, who went hitless at the plate but was steady in the field.

Arlington Tennis Player Is Victor

Troy, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—Clifford Lattin of Arlington High School, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will represent eastern and northern New York in the national interscholastic tennis singles championship tournament at Haverford, Pa., the week of July 16.

Lattin won his way into the national playoffs by defeating Irving Wiesner of Hudson High School 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the finals of a regional tourney here yesterday.

The doubles entry in the national playoffs will be decided here today.

Handy Guys.

Boston (AP)—Pilot Casey Stengel of the Boston Bees tanks his money Cooney and Bobby Reis as the most versatile pair of utility ball players "on any team." "I can see Cooney in the outfield, Reis can play the infield, outfield and pitch," Stengel explains.

Take a Chance.

New York (AP)—Ralph Guldahl, the National Open champion, thinks it takes a gambler to win tournaments. "In these days of fast fields and sub par scores, you've got to take chances to win. They pay off on boldness," says.

Managers Suggest Eye Tests For Umps, Who Suggest Showers For Managers

IT'S THE SHOWERS for "Boily." Brooklyn's Burleigh Grimes, most ejected major-league manager of 1937, gets the skidoo signal again from Umpire Larry Goetz. Grimes argues, Dodger Coach Haines retreats. Cardinal Hitter Brown moves to bat.

AN UMPIRE'S adverse verdict sent the Chicago Cubs into tantrums. From their dugout they hurled maledictions on the arbiters and accompanied the verbal shafts with a shower of towels, bats, gloves, and shin guards. No one was hurt.

Boats and Boating

Spencer Provides Boating Boys With Something to Talk About—Absecon Island Plans

By RICHARD O. GRUVER

Of Mahogany, Teakwood and Bronze

Over the week-end one of those flashing stream-lined beauties of a commuter boat into the creek and took the Rondout boatmen by the ears, so to speak.

It was piloted by its owner, a Mr. Spencer, of Brooklyn, formerly one of those nautical creations the boys look at in catalogues and the dream concerning which they finally swap for a rowboat, had been equipped with a new bronze shaft, 18 feet long. In the Rondout the boat struck a submerged log and the shaft was bent. Mr. Spencer, somewhat discouraged at the accident, called "Togo" Diven to the spot and commissioned him to tank the shaft and to take it to have it straightened.

Then before he left town he whispered to "Togo" that a song in three figures would give the boat a new owner. Last night no taker had come, but there were mutterings and schemings in many a local heart.

"To think of it," each boy said to himself, "if only I had $300."

Aye, my lads, just think of it—and weep those salty tears ye know so well when a smart lass of a skiff goes bouncing over the waves.

Atlantic City to Develop Boating

A $500,000 pleasure boat basin is the initial objective of a long-range improvement program launched by Atlantic City to increase the resort's beach and waterfront patronage through the development of adequate recreational boating facilities around Absecon Island.

Present city docks and piers will be modernized and owners of private piers will be enlisted in the drive for more resort visitors. Despite the fact that the city is entirely surrounded by water, officials have just awakened to its recreational boating possibilities.

Will Combat Canal Toll Proposal

The New York State Waterways Association is rallying its forces to attend the public hearing at Albany on Wednesday to combat a movement to charge tolls on the state's barge canal system.

Three toll proposals have been sent to the committee. One would impose a system of tolls on all boats and cargo except pleasure craft and farm machinery and another would allow the state legislature to impose a rate of "reasonable tolls."

The waterways interests, in opposing the toll proposition, point out that the New York state barge canals are an important link to the Federal system of free inland waterways and any toll levy would mean the end of Federal support in the maintenance of the channels, as well as present deepening and improvement work.

Winners and Faster Cars Back at Woodstock Midget Track June 12

Woodstock, June 4—Bill West, president of the Legion Speedway for midget autos which opened Sunday to a gallery of 7,500 spectators, announced today that George "Crash" Krantz, winner of the 25-lap main event, will return to compete on June 12.

Returning with Krantz will be Roy Setz, who finished second, and Tom Paradise, who took third place in the feature race of the opening day.

Bill DeNoth, Albany speedster; Pinky Kimble and Ed Buckley, of Scranton, Pa.; Ken Gullup and Cliff Barnett, also of Albany, will be back on the next racing date to burn up the quarter-mile oval.

Faster Cars

Theron Lasher, Albert Cashdollar and Kent Wilson, Speedway officials, said they had heard from these above-mentioned racers, who reported that they have stepped up the gearing of their cars to permit peppier dashes after turns.

The races on June 12 will be featured by two semi-final events. In these contests the first five winners in each heat will compete in the scorching 25-lap main event. This arrangement will allow track officials to determine to a nicely exactly what cars will give the most interesting finish. All heats, including the main race, will be reverse starts, which means that the fastest midgets will be in the rear at the post position.

Special Blindfold Act

"High" Gear, of Philadelphia, nationally known midget auto racing writer and stunt speedster, will be an added attraction and will present his dazzling blindfold act.

Legion Speedway authorities this week voted to abolish all parking charges on the huge lot, which accommodates 3,000 cars and which last week was full. There will be no let-down, however, in supervision of parking.

Time trials will commence at 11:30 a. m. and the feature race will begin promptly at 2:30 p. m.

Bill West said the increased purse, practically guarantees an entry list of 40 or more roaring midgets.

Gus Kowall, of Roosevelt Field, L. I., aviation mechanic and builder of super-powered midgets, promises several outstanding Class B entries, together with top-notch drivers, during the season.

Yates Three Up
On Britisher

St. Andrews, Scotland, June 1 (AP)—Charley Yates of Atlanta, who won the British amateur championship last Saturday, started a 16-foot putt on the eighteenth green today to be 3 up on friend and 18-year-old Jim Bruen at the half-way mark of their No. 1 Walker Cup singles match.

Hector Thomson of Scotland, British champion two years ago, caught Johnny Goodman, U. S. amateur title-holder, far off torn and went to lunch with a six-up lead over the stocky Omaha shotmaker. Goodman lost three holes on each nine.

The court also permitted the corporation to retain profits of $19,654,856 already paid the companies. KEEP YOUR LIVING STANDARD UP; BUDGET TO BEAT THE RECESSION

Budgeting Brings Things You Want

The spunky Browns! They met a pay cut with budget plan instead of futile worry. They can still have the vacation they longed for.

Their first month on a trial budget they kept track of every dime, saw where they could trim, and still have fun.

What amazed them most were the dollars that leaked away in little things. Mr. Brown fell for "bargain" ties which wouldn't stand up week. On a shopping trip Mrs. Brown would buy three or four snacks and soft drinks.

Now Mr. Brown buys according to plan and his Clothes Fund makes sure all bargains are real ones. Mrs. Brown eats at home right before shopping, spends just so much of her Recreation Fund for her mid-afternoon snack.

As for the food bill, Mrs. Brown says it was large because she seldom checked what was in her refrigerator before ordering.

She now plans a delicious chilled salad from left-over vegetables. From a little cake and the NAME of booklet.

Japan Reports New Loyalists Halt Advance; Chinese Sea Tactics Fail

Chinese Junks Thwarted in Effort to Sink Japanese Patrol Boat Near Canton

Shanghai, June 4 (AP)—Six large Chinese junks armored with steel plate today attacked a Japanese patrol vessel off the South China coast in what a Japanese naval spokesman called "extension of guerrilla activities to the sea."

The attack, which took place off Kwangtow, southeast of Canton, was repulsed with the aid of naval aircraft, the spokesman said, three of the junks being set afire and sunk.

Meanwhile, Japanese advices from the Lunghai front reported further success in the Japanese drive on Kaffeng and Chengchow, the capture of which would set the stage for a direct advance along the Peiping-Hankow railway to Hankow, China's provincial capital.

These reports said a Japanese column had captured Tungku, 20 miles south of Kaffeng, and 40 miles east of the Peiping-Hankow line.

Another Japanese column was attacking Chenliu, 15 miles southeast of Kaffeng.

Heavy fighting continued between the Lunghai railway and the Yellow river northwest of Lanteng, where Lieut.-Gen. Kenji Doihara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," was trapped.

Night Assault Falls

Chinese troops were said to have tried a night assault against Chenliu Ford but, according to Japanese advices, were driven back with heavy casualties.

Japanese reported Chinese troops were beginning to withdraw from the Lanling area to prepare for a "showdown" battle at Chengchow, 70 miles to the west. They said 200,000 Chinese, including the best central army troops, already had been concentrated around Chengchow.

Japanese attacks were directed at Tatung and Kweichow, about 200 miles down the river from Hankow. The two towns were shelled and bombed by warships and planes.

A Hongkong dispatch reported a new Japanese air raid on Canton, stating that 60 bombs were dropped near government offices in the city's central district. The planes were said to have released bombs over the international settlement on Shamen Island to hit Chinese buildings nearby. The dispatch did not give the number of casualties.

Play Presented

A dramatization of "Proof of the Pudding" by members of the Poughkeepsie P.T. A. and the reporters of the nominating committee followed.

Mrs. Floyd Hade, director recreation chairman, gave a short address on "How to be Streamlined Members," which was in keeping with the theme of the meeting and Mrs. Francis H. Hale, editor of the New York Parent-Teacher gave a report of the national convention at Salt Lake City.

Luncheon at the high school cafeteria concluded the morning session.

This afternoon selections will be given by the high school orchestra and Mrs. LeFever will assist lead group singing. Other program plans include a skit "Which is Your Unit?" by the Montgomery Parliamentary Procedure Class, clinics of local P.T. A. problems, a forum by four high school students, "What do we want in a high school association? How Can We Get It?", installation of the officers and
